

J. R. HICKS TELLS HIS STORY OF SHOOTING

Plea Will be That of Self Defense—Coroner's Inquest Held This Afternoon.

A coroner's inquest will be held over the body of Smith, who was shot and killed by J. R. Hicks last night this afternoon at 3 o'clock, by acting coroner Stanley A. Hanks. Pending the verdict of the coroner's jury Hicks is held at the city jail, and Kinney and the girl Peters are also held as witnesses. Hicks' with his slashed face, is in no serious condition and is able to talk, although he is reticent about the shooting affair and will give no interview for publication.

His plea, however, will be that of self-defense. J. R. Hicks, 34 years old, president of the Douglas club, who visited Hicks and Kinney at the jail this morning, Hicks told the story of the shooting.

"Smith came into the club raising a row with Kinney, and he became so noisy that I ordered him out of the place two or three times. He wouldn't go but kept on his talk and then suddenly attacked Kinney. I ran to them to separate them and Smith turned on me with the razor. As he began trying to cut me he caught me by the leg and I couldn't get away. When he cut me across the face I pulled out my revolver and fired to scare him, but he kept coming at me and in self-defense I had to shove the gun against him and fire. This was the whole thing."

The accounts told today bear out the story of last night that the trouble arose out of jealousy over the girl Peters. Kinney, a communications man, had been on occasion for the row that Smith started.

"He was after me though," Kinney said today, "and picked the quarrel several times last night. When he came at me with the razor I had to hold almost a death grip on him to prevent him killing me."

The two shots fired by Hicks both took effect, the first entering Smith's left knee and the second tearing through the heart.

Smith was a resident of Salt Lake about two years working at various barber shops in the capacity of porter and bootblack. The body is held at O'Donnell's mortuary pending the funeral arrangements.

ROYLE BROTHERS DEPART.

Mrs. Judge Royle Goes to New York With Her Son.

Dr. Sinclair Royle, E. M. Royle and Jack Royle, who were called to Salt Lake to attend the funeral of their father, the late Judge Royle, return to their homes in the east tomorrow. Mrs. Judge Royle will accompany E. M. Royle to his home in New York and remain there for an indefinite time.

All three gentlemen were deeply grieved at the evidences of esteem and affection manifested to the memory of their father, and the sadness of the parting was greatly alleviated by the many tributes and marks of respect paid to him.

Mr. E. M. Royle, the well known author of "The Squaw Man," "Friends," and other successful plays, visited the book stores of the city this morning in the attempt to locate a copy of his new work of "The Silent Call," taken from his play "These Are My People." He was unable to find a single copy, as after the notice the book received in the Saturday News last week, every dealer sold out his supply. New shipments, however, are expected soon.

Mrs. Royle said to a representative of The News that his play, under its new name, "The Silent Call," would be brought out, though he had not as yet closed with the producers. He also made a contract by which the rights to his former plays, "The Squaw Man," "Friends," "My Wife's Husband," "Captain Impudence," and "Clio," had been transferred to the Selwyns of New York for a term of three years, he receiving a substantial guarantee payable monthly, and the Selwyns taking off his hands all negotiations for their production by stock companies through the city.

VEHICLES MUST MOVE ON.

The city ordinance regulating the station of licensed vehicles on the public streets is to be enforced by Chief of Police Barlow, and the congestion at crowded street corners relieved. Under the ordinance all licensed vehicles, which includes automobiles, taxicabs, and other vehicles, must remain 30 feet apart on the streets, and must stand at least 10 feet from any street intersection. The custom of public automobiles and taxicabs to crowd together at the street intersections has caused numerous protests, and the order has been issued for the enforcement of the ordinance.

About 60 volumes of mining and engineering works, valued at about $200, have been stolen from the city library in the last few months. The librarian has notified the police who are looking among the pawn shops and second hand stores, but the supposition is that the men who thus helped themselves are not likely to sell them, and some price is expressed at the library that men of the presumed mental status of these men should engage in such petty thefts.

SUES FOR RING IN PAWN.

In a suit filed in the city court by Mamie Crow against Hugh A. White and A. L. White, doing business as Uncle Sam's Loan Office, it has developed, according to the testimony of the plaintiff, that George Ross, an acquaintance of Miss Crow, tried to induce her to let him wear her diamond ring, valued at $225, and, failing in that, held her up at the point of a revolver on the night of Feb. 7, when she was returning from her car, and took the ring away from her. She then pawned the diamond for $65 at the Uncle Sam Loan Office and when she called at the pawnshop the following day, she received an envelope containing only the pawn ticket for the ring. Ross has vanished, and the pawn shop has refused the return of the ring. She is therefore suing for the value of the ring, $225, and damages to the amount of $25.
